Q: Mises's equivalent stress can be acquired by two methods using macros as shown below.

  Converting from tensor by the TransEquivalentValue method
  Directly acquiring from the potential of GALILEO_VON_MISES_C
  Should they be used differently?

A: Both can be used in the same way.
  Some methods are added in response to revised specifications for displaying results, while old methods can still be used to maintain backward compatibility.